Diversity in Britain

1840 Many people came to England to escape a terrible famine in Ireland.

43-410AD: Romans invaded, bringing the first black people with them from North Africa. A few hundred years later they returned to Italy leaving those who wished to stay.

Today: Immigrants continue to arrive from the EU and around the world, adding to the diversity of our country.

1555-1833: African and Afro-Caribbean people arrived because of Britain's involvement in the slave trade.

1946: After the Second World War many refugees came to Britain from Eastern Europe.

1700 onwards: Indians and Chinese arrived because of Britain's growing Empire and trade with far off countries.

Diversity of the UK

- Britain, down to its deepest roots, has always been a diverse nation.
- Our diversity is a result of invasion, expansion, empire and Commonwealth, and being a safe haven for people fleeing danger.
- For over 2000 years people have arrived in Britain, contributing their own cultural influence.
- The previous map shows just some of them!

Diversity of the UK

- Much of our diversity comes from the British Empire, which at its height governed over one quarter of the world's population – that's 458 million people!
- After the British Empire collapsed, people from the Commonwealth migrated to Britain, and countries such as the Caribbean and India were invited to help strengthen our workforce.

Diversity of the UK

- Today, people continue to move all around the world.
- The expansion of the European Union has seen a number of Europeans come to the UK in recent years.
- Our current population of over 60 million people includes a mix of people from different racial, religious and cultural backgrounds.
- The 2001 Census shows that about 7.9% of the population are from minority ethnic backgrounds.

So what mix of culture does this mix of people bring to our country?

A collage of ten different food dishes. The dishes include: spaghetti with vegetables in a bowl; a hot dog in a bun with mustard and ketchup; a plate of various sushi rolls; a whole pizza with toppings; a bowl of spaghetti with a meat sauce and basil; a bowl of seafood soup with mussels and shrimp; a plate of spaghetti with a meat sauce and basil; a plate of chicken and vegetable kebabs; a plate of dumplings with a dipping sauce; and a plate of small metal cups containing different types of food, possibly a salad or a snack.

Diverse people, diverse identities

- When we talk about diversity, we don't just talk about race and ethnicity.
- Diversity includes all different people, each contributing their own uniqueness, making Britain a more interesting place to live.
- So diversity includes people of different gender, ages, disability, religion, beliefs and more.
- It is important that everyone respects and celebrates each other's differences so we can all get along, learn from each other and share an exciting mix of cultures and experiences.

Respect our differences

- It is important to celebrate and respect that we are all different.
- Remember, we are all different in our own way (each one of you), and we all add something special to the diversity of our country.
- The world would be a boring place if we were all the same!
- Finding out about different cultures and discovering the different ways that people live and think is fascinating, and helps everyone to get along and understand each other better.
- So let's show some respect for difference.

What have we learnt?

- ✓ That our country has a diverse population.
- ✓ Where our diversity comes from.
- ✓ That diversity has many benefits and we should celebrate difference.
